HOW DID THE FUND PERFORM LAST YEAR AND WHAT AFFECTED ITS PERFORMANCE?

In 2025, the Dynamic Allocation Fund delivered its strongest yearly return since the funds inception in 2020. This achievement was possible by proactively managing a year marked by both significant rallies and sudden shifts in trade policy. Our disciplined risk framework allowed us to move to a defensive, Risk-Off posture during the sharp market selloff in early spring, successfully preserving capital before reentering the market just in time for the subsequent recovery.

The middle of the year saw markets advance as inflation eased and artificial intelligence themes drove concentrated growth in large-cap stocks. The Fund remained fully engaged during this period, blending growth and core equity investments to capture the broad upward momentum. While a late-year pullback in growth stocks resulted in a modestly negative December, the Fund's ability to stay Risk-On for 35 consecutive weeks underscored our commitment to participating in market gains while maintaining the flexibility to navigate short-term volatility.
